Induction of Newest Board Members

Janice Miller and Toby Sorensen spoke about city and county school system

Random Facts:

5 members elected for 2 year terms

City has four schools - Fairfax HS, Lanier, Daniels Run and Providence - about 3,000 students about 40% of students attending Fairfax and Lanier are city residents, 70% of Providence and 99% of Daniels Run

City pays tuition to Co for city students
County pays City rental on school building

City is to pay for all major capital improvements - Co has been favorable to City in deciding what constitutes "major"

City accounts for 1.5% of all County students - yet because most Co committees have 5 to 7 members - City has much higher representation %

Discipline: Resource officers (1 each at Fairfax and Lanier) and Security Admin process - interview student about incident to determine if there is cause, suspend, case to central hearing office, probation (may involve involuntary transfer to another school, resolution may allow student to return to original school), possible appeal to school board

For 2009-2010 school year of the 177,000 students in system there were 636 expulsions and 11 expelled permanently without further services provided to student

The involuntary transfer issue has been a controversial subject of late - entire process being reviewed.

Some initial recommendations - more parental notification, more parental education on the process, reducing the time line of the process (getting the student back into educational environment quicker) and more education offered while the student is in the process, more intervention education, reevaluation of process when student has been caught with their own prescription medication, better data collection to determine recidivism patterns, exit survey for parents at the end of the process, provide implementation retraining of School Board. Other issues of concern - lack of parent involvement in first step of process (student interview) and process emphasizes treating every student exactly the same.

City School Board provides a newsletter - you can sign up for it on Facebook

Dia mentioned Country Hill Drive residents complaining about HS trespassers. The resident who complained had solved his problem by emailing a photo to the truant officer. Dia thought we should send out an email to other CH dr. residents to see if they were also had HS related issues.

Meeting was adjourned.
